Hello, readers! We all know that money doesn't grow on trees, so here are some things you can do to make your dollars last.

1. Pay a little more.

Don't be afraid to pay a little extra for high-quality items. Cheap goods often wear out or break quickly. Pay a little more, and you'll save money in the long run.

2. Wait for sales.

Do you really need that new summer dress right now? Wait until the fall and you'll get it for half the price. You can always wear it next summer.

3. Buy secondhand.

You can pick up some great stuff in secondhand shops and markets these days—books for school, clothes, DVDs, everything. You'll be surprised what treasures you can find!

Dear Diary,

Today was a pretty interesting day at school. Mother's Day is coming, so lots of our lessons had a Mother's Day theme. We learned about the history of Mother's Day in history class, Mother's Day in different cultures in our sociology class, and we read a Mother's Day poem in English. But my favorite lesson today was biology.

We learned about mothers in the animal Kingdom. Some animals really have it tough! For example, some deep-sea octopuses guard their eggs for over four years, and they hardly eat at all while they're doing so. Some sharks—I think it was the frilled shark—carry their babies for three and a half years before they're born! I also told Mom about scorpions. After they give birth to their babies, scorpions carry them around on their backs until they're grown up. Mom said she sometimes feels like a scorpion because she is always driving my brother and me everywhere, too! But then I gave her a box of chocolates and a card, and she brightened up a bit after that.

Right; now off to bed.

Goodnight, Diary!
